A-Train Inc. Loses Money

Story by: B Hath

A-Train, Inc. took the trophy home a few months ago from the 2012 DOL BOWL X and returned home as the Shirts Division's first champion. However, it also brought back debt. According to A-Train, Inc. income statement from the game, obtained by DOL officials in the form of a public records request, A-Train inc. lost more than $478,000 from it's participation in DOL Bowl X. About $440,000 of the company's losses stem from dismal ticket sales for it's matchup against Lowe, Inc. The lack of "edge" was blamed for the lack of butts in the seats, despite the Lowe's "bad-boy" reputation.

It was the first time since the 2006 DOL BOWL that the game was not a sell-out. Coincidentally, Bob Lowe was part of that game as well. Perhaps the seemingly quiet nature of the new league champion was partly to blame, but league cutbacks on advertising for the game may have effected it worse than League Manager-Hathaway wants to admit.

LOWE MAINTENANCE:

Top 5 DOL Problems for 2012:

#5. Hank's phone: Can we truly be this deep in the history of this league and still have phone problems? iPhones, droids etc and still using a landline is mind boggling. I blame Taf coaching at Pace.

#4. Best Team Name/Worst Team Name Award: I really felt the effort this year was mediocre at best. I am writing a petition which would place an asterisk (*) by the winner/loser name for this year. Maybe we should ALL be allowed to change names as we see fit and then vote at the end of the year. I blame Taf coaching at Pace and being the only one allowed to change names.

#3. Gun Control

#2. Having Adrian Peterson and Tom Brady and still not winning the League: How is this possible? We stole AP with the 25th or 26th pick in the draft and still no glory. I blame Zane.

#1. Liking your fantasy team better than your real football team: After we lost the Championship game to some punk, we lost interest in football including our beloved Patriots. Didn't even watch any of the Baltimore 28-14 (?) fiasco. Fantasy is life! I blame Tom Brady.

BIG WESTICLES

2009 DOL Champion, Weston Lunsford has inked a new contract with DOL officials to appear in his own DOL segment, "BIG WESTICLES".

DOL will pay the former champion an un-specified salary to appear in at least 4 episodes of the show with an option to pick up more as the feedback flows in.

Ex-Champ Arrested Again

Former 2011 DOL Champion, Stephen Whitson, a second round pick to the league in 2011, was arrested again for public intoxication during this past weekend's NBA All Star Game festivities.

League officials are yet to comment on the arrest, but fines are expected for Whitson, Inc.

DOL FOR CHARITY

DOL will be auctioning off some pieces rejected by the DOL HALL OF FAME for charity upcoming in the next newsletter. Some pieces will include:

-The faces of Mount Crushmore that are no longer being used.

-Jacob Jordan's DOL BOWL Championship Trophy Case. (it's empty anyway.)

-B-Hath's banana hammock used in 2011 celebration in win over rival Jacob.

And much more!!
